

About Fr John

The Very Rev. Dr. John Behr is Professor of Patristics at St Vladimir's Orthodox Theological Seminary in Yonkers, NY. He studied under Metropolitan Kallistos Ware at Oxford University and has taught seminars similar to ours around the world. A leading scholar of early Christian theology, Fr. John has written many books, including The Way to Nicaea, The Nicene Faith, The Mystery of Christ, Becoming Human, and most recently, a new translation of Origen's On First Principles. He is also the general editor of St Vladimir Seminary Press's Popular Patristics translation series. Fr. John is married and has three children.

*Shaping the Faith:
The Theology of Ignatius,
Irenaeus, Origen, and Athanasius*

Shaping the Faith

This course will look at the development of Christian theology in the period leading up to the Council of Nicaea. It will focus on the most important figures while treating various themes: Christology, triadology, and anthropology; sin, passion, and death; and Scripture and its exegesis. Fundamental questions will include: what did each figure see as the nature and method of theology itself — what is theology and how does it work? — and what is the canon or criterion, if any, that regulates it (raising questions of uniformity and diversity)? What texts are to count as sacred scripture and how are they to be interpreted? What are the central teachings of Christianity regarding 1) the person of Christ and his relation to God and the Spirit, and 2) what is sometimes called “salvation history” (creation—fall—redemption) and 3) how do the Fathers understand and articulate such teachings? The course will also examine the question of how a Christian should follow Christ by looking closely at the witness of the martyrs.

Texts to be studied:

Melito of Sardis, On Pascha
St. Ignatius of Antioch, Letters
St. Irenaeus, Against Heresies
Origen, Commentary on John; First Principles
St. Athanasius, On the Incarnation
